PARENT EMPOWERMENT MATERIALS

Parents provide the vital link between health care professionals and the schools. Informed and empowered parents are very effective when working in alliance with health and education professionals. The following materials have been developed by CHADD of Utah to enhance the effectiveness of parents and to serve as a supplement to the Attention-Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder Care Process Model Manual . Health and education professionals may copy these materials and give them as handouts to parents.

The Callister Foundation provided financial support for the printing of these materials. The Foundation is a private non-profit corporation whose work involves education and treatment for individuals and families struggling with AD/HD and related disorders.
